KQAL Holding Radio Auction

Winona State University's radio station, KQAL, is having a 2 day radio auction today and tomorrow. The auction will raise money for the station and provide a unique way of purchasing gifts or services during the holiday season.

Starting today, the products will be auctioned off over the air. The items will be described many times. If interested, phone in a bid to the KQAL office by dialing 457-2900. The highest bids will be continuously announced, until 6 p.m. Friday evening, when all bidding will close.

To see the item being described, come to Room 232 in the Performing Arts Center. KQAL staff will be available there to answer questions about merchandise. Items can be picked up between Monday, December 12th, and Christmas break.

Some of the products to be sold include: a sweater, hat, watch, wig, gift certificates from local restaurants and grocery stores, jewelry, gloves, jackets, a picture frame, roller skates, pizzas, a coffee thermos, humidifier, plants, flashlights, fabric and accessories, paint, room decorations, headphones, a cassette recorder, donuts, perfume, a body exerciser, a hamburger cooker, a billfold, portable emergency spotlight, a cooler, wine glasses, ceramics, shoes, dinners, bowling passes, and necklaces. Local merchants have donated the products and services.

KQAL started broadcasting December 5, 1975 and is a 10 watt station, 89.5 on the FM dial. It is staffed by approximately 40 students every quarter and can be described as a progressive album-oriented station.

Daryl Henderson Named "All American" Runner

by Joe Bissen
WINONAN Sports Editor

Daryl Henderson was rewarded for his outstanding season as a cross country runner in high fashion last month when he was named an All-American runner. Henderson richly deserved the honor, as he not only won the NIC and District 14 championships, he grabbed twelfth in the entire nation for NAIA runners at UW-Parkside in Kenosha, Wisconsin.

Henderson has won praise from everyone, from fellow harriers to coaches to fans. He has not been praised just for his running ability but for his attitude and personality as well.

Myron Smith, cross country coach, said that Henderson ran the best race ever at WSU, and "one of the best ever in the conference." Henderson is the first distance runner at WSU to be named All-American.

Henderson toured the Kenosha course in 24:52, a time which would have won the title three years ago. Garry Henry of Pembroke State won in 24:12.

Neal Mundahl also made the trip to Kenosha and came home with an excellent 84th place finish in the meet. Not bad at all when you consider there were about five-hundred runners participating.

Smith considers Henderson to have been a great credit to the program. "It's a very positive thing for the program. I'm sure he taught a lot of kids."

While Henderson has run his last race as a Warrior, his presence could be felt for quite some time. Smith has used Henderson's influence in his recruiting letters, and he says "we've had an excellent response to letters."

Clippings on Henderson's feats grace the halls of not just WSU, but other schools too. Articles were recently seen in UW-L's Mitchell Hall Gymnasium (at a school which boasts the NAIA All-Sports-Trophy).

Daryl Henderson has put Winona State cross country on the map for good.

Davey, a 1972 graduate of Northwestern University Medical School, joins a health service staff of one full-time physician, two full-time nurses and one part-time lab technologist.

Davey is an orthopedic specialist but will also be seeing patients with other health concerns," Dr. Kane said. "We are happy to have him join our staff and can do so without raising student health fees," Kane explained. "For a university our size, I think we have excellent health facilities and staffing," he added.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

Maxwell Library Resources Reviewed

by Bonnie J. Whitley

In spite of inflation and decreasing budgets, Winona State University's Maxwell Library has managed to grow and change within the past ten years. According to a national survey, an average of $25 million were allocated to college libraries in 1967 which bought 2.9 million books, and 3.1 million periodical subscriptions. In 1976 an average of $10 million was appropriated to purchase 611,000 books, and 443,000 periodical subscriptions. The number of students in that period doubled.

Maxwell Library, verified that many of the changes at Maxwell have been due to the limited working capital. Maxwell is in its tenth year of computerization but it was the first state university library to become computerized.

"St. Cloud, Mankato, Bemidji, all have larger budgets but we beat 'em all" stated Jacobsen. "We couldn't increase our staff so twelve years ago we began planning for it. Now the computers take care of accounting, acquisition (which includes the selection order, the work slip which follows the book through from order to shelving, the on order card and the lists which go to each department showing which books are on order) and periodical information such as titles of all subscriptions and bid lists for renewal."

Jacobsen pointed out that some departments have expanded and some have decreased to fit the university's needs. The periodicals department had decreased, then increased, and is stabilized at 940 periodicals and 16 newspapers. The reason is that in 1967 the average cost of a subscription was $8.77. That cost jumped to $16.32 in 1976. Since Phelps Laboratory School closed there has no longer been a need to acquire children's books. The department which has grown the most is Government Documents.

Pat Haugen, Government Documents Librarian for the past seven years, commented, "The Government Documents Department has been much more active in recent years. We use more microfilm, microfiche and microcards. We have a complete collection of Educational Resources Information Center microfiche (tiny sheets of microfilm) which provide access to descriptions of educational materials. The fiche make it possible to store thousands of articles in a small amount of space."

Haugen continued, "Microprint cards are used for U.S. Government publications. WSU was designated as a selective depository for U.S. Government publications in 1969. The U.S. Government is the largest publisher in America, so we have to be very careful in our selection of materials as we are required to keep all materials for five years. Storage of that amount of material would be impossible if it were not for the microprint system. Of course with this kind of a system it was necessary to purchase reading machines. The Minitex (Minnesota Interlibrary Teletype Exchange) system has also expanded. This system is funded by the Minnesota State Legislature.

Jacobsen explained, "The Minitex system connects all four-year, degree-granting universities in the state by Teletype so that copies of materials from other libraries may be requested. This expedites the loan and receipt process. It also makes this service, which was normally used only for faculty and graduate students, available to all students." Jacobsen warns students to be judicious in choosing materials. "There is no charge for the copies, but the taxpayer is supporting the system," he explained. "The purpose is to share resources in order to supplement what is available in our own library. It should be used only after our informational resources have been exhausted."

Other changes in the library, noted Jacobsen, include the new addition to the building in 1966-67, and the installation of the 3M Electronic Tattletape in August of 1973. That is the system that sets off a gong, and locks the gate if you try to leave the library without checking out your books. Jacobsen would not reveal the details of the system but stated that the books are de-sensitized at the desk when they are checked out. When asked if the alarm went off often he said, "Yes, quite a bit, at first. There was a time when a certain notebook, sold in the bookstore, for some reason always triggered the alarm, but it

SUB Creating New Task Forces

Two task forces on student-related concerns, food service and student health insurance, are being formed by the State University Board (SUB). Students and administrators from each campus in the state university system including Winona State will serve on the task forces.

The food service committee, established annually, assists in preparing final recommendations to the State University Board regarding the food service contract for the next year. This committee will be responsible for determining the level of satisfaction with the present food service, deciding on agenda to the contract and serving as resource persons in the preliminary contract negotiations.

Dr. John Kane, Vice President for Student Affairs, will serve as the administrative representative on the food service task force. Two student representatives will be selected by the Student Senate. The student representatives must have room and board contracts and one of them must be recommended by the Inter-Residence Hall Council (IRHC).

The student health insurance task force will prepare a brochure in layman's language outlining the limits of coverage provided by the present health insurance policy. Meetings will convene in January.

Two students will be selected by the Student Senate to serve on this task force. Ms. Diane Dingfelder, Assistant to the Vice President for Student Affairs, will serve as the WSU administrative representative on this committee.

Police to Enforce Warrants Issued

Police Chief informs that there will be a crackdown on persons failing to appear as directed on a violations citation, or after notification that an arrest warrant has been issued. Persons not appearing as directed on a citation cause a considerable amount of extra work for the court, the prosecuting staff, and the Police Department.

For misdemeanor charges, the police have been attempting to notify persons failing to appear, that a warrant will be issued for their arrest, and that they should come in and post a bond or appear in court. Hereafter, there will be a change in policy. Whenever a warrant is issued for anyone failing to appear to answer charges, police will make an extended effort to make physical arrests. Persons named on warrants will be placed in jail until a bond is posted, or an appearance is made before the court. If necessary, police will make arrests at places of employment, or in the case of students — in the classroom.

Judge Challeen informed the Police Chief that he will consider an additional penalty, up to $25, per charge, if the alleged offender has wilfully disregarded a citation or

Thinking about something different? Do you march to the beat of a different drummer? Let's hear from you.

Academic Standards — How Are They Determined?

Winter quarter has arrived, and to ward off the cold, students are nestling into warm corners of their apartments and dorms to cozily dig into their studies.

The other evening, I was driving past Morey Hall, and observed the lattice work of lights. (Although it may not be so) I imagined each room occupied with students industriously studying. Driving on, I went to the movies that night. Later, I wondered if it might not have been better to have studied instead of going to the show. No, I thought, the movie was worth the time. In fact, all two thousand students in the dorms should have gone and seen the show. After all, how important is it that they spend (or so I imagine) all of their time studying?

This question led me to start wondering exactly what it is that students are after. Why should one want to forego an evening of entertainment to sit in a solitary room and mull over, for ex., the reasons why Milton's Paradise Lost is a classic? The bottom line becomes: how much and what type of studying is necessary to fulfill a student's needs? We need a standard to judge against in determining whether or not those needs are met.

At WSU, courses are evaluated for their "worth" by the Academic Affairs and Curriculum Committee (A2C2 Comm.) Also, faculty are evaluated by the optional Faculty Evaluations put out by the student senate. To gauge student performance, grades are issued each quarter.

I question how valid each of these "tools" are. First, how does the A2C2 determine the "worth" of a course? Is a job-oriented course "worth" more than an esoteric journey through the annals of Zen philosophy? Or is knowledge learned for its own sake enough payment for time spent? Who can determine if a philosophy course might end up more of an aid to a job in the future than a course on electronics, for example.

Furthermore, how much should a course cover? Is one book or ten, or maybe twenty sufficient to cover a subject? Should a subject area be covered in its entirety regardless of whether or not students of a particular class have the desire to cover it?

I don't know of any school that would admit that it encourages students not to study to the max, yet, practically, some universities seem to require Cliff's Notes for one of the class texts. If a school announces that it wants to give students the easy way out, then Cliff's notes are the only way to go. However, if the policy of the school is to "go beyond the Cliffs", then there should be some way of enforcing that standard. Again, the question is how difficult a standard should the school set itself in determining the "worth" of a course. Also, a standard has to be set to compare, if possible, the comparative worth of liberal arts vs. vocationally-oriented courses.

Looking at faculty evaluation, one wonders what the numbers tallied up mean. One professor, for example, got an overall rating of 2.5 on a 5 point scale. Does that make the professor a poor teacher? What if there were 10 sophomores taking a senior course? If they didn't understand much of the material they may put down that the teacher was poor. Possibly one could get a rough idea of the relative proficiency of a professor by noting trends of evaluation over a period of time. Yet, how do you compensate the scores, when a teacher has many required courses. Do students tend to like the courses less when they have to take them? Also, one may wonder how a student can judge the worth of a course taught — to help the student in the future — before the future arrives. The student does not yet know whether or not the course will be handy. We need a standard to compare against.

On the question of grades, I sometimes wonder if they should be "scaled". But I don't know how tough a test should be to be "fair". Everyone knows that exams can be drawn up to flunk any class. On the other hand, any teacher can make a test easy enough to give 90 per cent of the class an "A". What is fair?

So, without first determining how often a student could spend time enjoying himself in the theatre, we have no consistent standard against which to evaluate whether or not courses are worthwhile.

Well, I don't have much to do tonight, so I think that I'll watch "Welcome Back Kotter" on T.V. Later on I'll decide whether or not the show had more educational value and future worth than reading a physics text on the fundamentals of thermal-dynamics.

What do you think? What should the standards at WSU be? Where do you think they are now? How should we evaluate what we are paying for — our education? I hope that students and faculty would respond to this cornerstone upon which all university policy is built.

Stu

Pre-Registration Examined

Dear Editor:

Pre-registration is a time of panic for most students with little or no credits. With the fear of having to take classes they are unfamiliar with, students have upper classmen friends pull class cards for them. This an obvious and unscrupulous practice that must be stopped. A major change in the registration system must be made to stop students from pulling class cards for other students that register at a later date.

The idea of students stealing class cards out of the registration area was very surprising to me. I know of numerous occasions that a student has asked another student to pull class cards for him. I have a friend that has also witnessed this. It's impossible to know how many class cards are stolen. But it's my guess the number is large.

What is even more surprising than the stealing of class cards is the ease at which they are stolen. Under the system now used a student can proceed to the class card station, and have a class card pulled for him without having to sign it and show identification on the spot. His biggest obstacle may be, he will have to write the class down on his schedule. But after receiving the card it's tucked away in a book, and the class is erased off his schedule.

The stealing of class cards could be stopped just as easily as they are stolen. A few small changes would have to be built into the system. One would be the signing of the class cards and showing identification at the time they are issued. For this to be possible, all the classes on the schedule would have to be cleared at the same time. The student would simply hand his schedule to the first attendant sitting at the class card station. The schedule then would be passed down the line, attendants pulling the students class cards as it goes. After handing the schedule to the first attendant the student would proceed to the end of the table, where he would pick up all of his class cards. At this point he would be asked to show identification and sign all of the cards. If a class was closed the student would have to pick up his schedule at the point it stalled and correct his schedule accordingly.

The system described above would be an insult to the trustworthiness of the student body. I plead with the student body not to pull class cards for friends. For registration to work we all have to play under the same rules. It would be a shame to have to change the system just to stop dishonest students.

Yours truly,
Tom Hall

Anti-ERA Stance Shot

Dear Editor,

It strikes me as ironic, that at a university, where young people are allegedly learning to open and use their minds, Edward J. Martin seems to determined to keep his tightly closed and useless.

Martin, like so many critics of the ERA, obviously has no idea of what it is. The Equal Rights Amendment is a simple statement: "Equal rights under the law shall not be denied because of sex." Contrary to popular (and uninformed) opinion, the ERA will not create laws; it will, however, prevent laws which discriminate against people on the basis of sex, just as the Civil Rights Amendment prevents racial discrimination.

Those who advocate the case-by-case, piecemeal, "scatter-gun" approach to equal rights are apparently unaware of the snail-like pace and determined obduracy of state legislatures. Women have been fighting for individual laws in courts and legislatures for over a decade, with varied success, as witness the hundreds of laws which still relegate women to second-class status. The ERA will give women a constitutional base for challenging these laws, wherever they exist.

The oft-repeated allegation that the ERA will force women into combat is as far from the facts as Martin's other glittering generalities. No law currently prevents drafting women or sending them into combat. Military regulations govern such matters.

The murky logic and cheap sensationalism typified by Martin's column are favorite tools of the anti-ERA forces, and have grown stale from repetition. This embattled, insecure minority has sadly slowed the ratification of the ERA, but will not ultimately prevent it from becoming a part of the Constitution, and a benefit to women and men alike.

Sincerely,
Dr. Sandra Bennett

Dudley Riggs Plays to Full House

by Georgette M. Bush

For anyone who missed it, Dudley Riggs' Brave New Workshop was in Somsen Auditorium last Thursday night. In this case, it is one of those "you had to be there" situations. I can't even begin to tell you how funny it was.

Playing to a packed audience, they did skits such as: Panic In A Blackout, with such an all-American family it was scary . . . I thought I was at home; the Patient that goes to a shrink because he can't form a coherent sentence, there was just too many words in our vocabulary to decide from; and of course, a faux pas in the fancy French restaurant — who farted, anyway?

One of the most amazing things about the whole show was the perfect timing of the people on stage and "who was that masked man(?)" doing sound effects into a microphone offstage. They seemed to have it down to the most minute detail.

So for all of you that feel really bad about missing it — well, there is always next year.

Winona's Heritage

by Henry Hull

In the seventeenth century, Winona, along with the rest of Minnesota, became French territory. In the century before that, Jaques Cartier had claimed the Canadian part of North America as French, but little was done that century. In the seventeenth century, France made a settlement in Canada, and French explorers pushed west as far as Minnesota. Certainly Perrot, Hennepin and Leseur came by Winona while travelling on the Mississippi.

In the following century, the French lost part of Minnesota in a disastrous war with Great Britain, and in the Treaty of Paris of 1763, turned over the west bank of the Mississippi to Spain. While Winona on paper, was Spanish territory, the Spanish never exerted any authority to speak of this far up the river.

In the meantime, the American colonies on the east edge of North America gradually drifted into a revolutionary war against the British overlords. The war dragged on for years and the Spanish, in time, also became opponents of the British. British agents were active among the Indians on both banks of the Mississippi and enlisted Wabasha's band, the local Winona area Indians, on their side. During that war Wabasha's band of warriors went with other Indians of the area to the St. Louis area in an attempt to destroy the Spanish hold. This expedition was a failure. The lightly armed Indians had no chance against the Spaniards, who with their good intelligence work, knew they were coming and had taken measures that placed themselves in a strong position. We can conclude then, that the first, even dimly recorded effort of Winona troops as a failure.

The War of the American Revolution had spilled over into the west. One of the really brave men in American history, George R. Clark and his brave, if small, band of roughneck frontiersmen had won the Ohio valley from the British and at the peacetable at the end of the war the Americans could successfully claim the east bank of the Mississippi. Much of Minnesota went to the U.S.A. but Winona was still Spanish territory.

The next installment will show the transfer of Winona to the U.S.A.

Vet Checks Increasing

As a result of the "GI Bill Improvement Act of 1977" signed by President Carter, veteran's education assistance checks due in December will include the new higher rate for November plus an extra amount for October. The one exception is the case of students in vocational rehabilitation who will receive two checks in December — one for November at the new rate and another for the amount of the retroactive increase for October.

Single veterans who are full-time students will receive a December check of $330-$38 more than the November check which was at the old rate of $292. January and subsequent checks will be $311 for single, full-time students.

Monthly payments for veterans with one dependent were increased from $347 to $370, and for veterans with two dependents, from $396 to $422 monthly. For each additional dependent, the extra allowance rose from $24 to $26.

The "GI Bill Improvement Act of 1977" also increased VA tutorial assistance payments, the hourly rate for VA work-study payments and the maximum amount of a VA education loan.

Winter Parking Restrictions Announced

With the arrival of winter, Police Chief Carstenbrock reminds motorists to be aware of the city's parking restrictions — so that the tagging and impounding of vehicles can be kept to a minimum. The expense incurred because of improper parking could easily be avoided. Some of the more common winter violations are:

(1) Parking in excess of the 20-hour limit on all streets — unless otherwise marked throughout the city.

(2) Parking on an emergency snow route after an emergency for clearing the snow has been declared for that street.

(3) Parking in an area posted for snow removal.

(4) Parking too close to a fire hydrant.

Owners of vehicles that are towed away must report to the Police Department to obtain a release before retrieving their vehicle.

was quickly recognized as the culprit." (Jacobsen stated that the system has resulted in quite a reduction in book losses. In 1973 there were 1800 books missing from the collection at an average of $12.20 per book for a total of $21,960. In 1976 those figures dropped to 103 books missing (only 30 of which were sensitized) at an average cost of $16.19 per book for a total of $1667.57.

As for the future, Jacobsen sees a leveling off of appropriations and spending, but he says that will not be bad, as statistics indicate that in 1980-81 college enrollments will also reach a plateau.

Football: What Could Have Been?

by Mike Killeen
WINONA Sports Reporter

The final second ticked off long ago for the Winona State University football team, but head coach Frank Conroy can only think back on what it could have been during the Warriors 3-7 1977 season.

"It was a disappointing season — disappointing in a number of respects", declared Conroy, the second year coach. "It was disappointing for the players, disappointing for the coaches, and disappointing for the students here at school. I think we all felt at the beginning of the season that we had a pretty fine team, and at the beginning of the season, we showed promises of being that team."

Things did not materialize for the Warriors, though. Conroy felt that a critical reason for this was the loss of defensive lineman Mike Remick's leadership. "Mike was a super athlete who helped us that way but his biggest asset was his leadership. . . . when he got hurt we lost his leadership."

Injuries also played a major role in the Warriors' disappointing season as fifteen of the starting twenty-two players started the final game in a different position than what they started the season at. "The injuries did play a factor", he said. "I think minimum we would have been 5-5 if we had been healthy, and if things would have fallen in place, we could have possibly been 7-3 in the season."

Conroy felt that Winona State proved that "we are competitive and that we can play good football." Conroy added that for the Warriors to be competitive in the NIC that they have to instill in the players the need for conditioning over a year's time and the need to recruit the good local athlete who is currently moving out of the area to other schools. He felt that the non-conference wins over Wisconsin opponents who compete against WSU for the student-athletes is an aid to the program.

"I think a number of the younger players finally realized that if they wanted to play college ball, especially in the NIC, they are gonna have to be stronger physically, and they are gonna have to work on the off-season more. Hopefully, this year this will happen with the weight program", Conroy said.

The weight program could play an important role in reversing the Warriors record. It's an optional program, but already 60 players are involved in it. "Right now, the players are in the process of being tested for their endurance factor and many other things", Conroy said. He added that testing is a critical part of the program, saying that the athlete "can see where he stands against the national norms."

Conroy, meanwhile, will spend his off-season working on improving the offense and defense as well as the overall program. He is "constantly going over films from last year" and trying to upgrade what the team is doing, as well as evaluating personnel. He added that he "wasn't totally satisfied with the offense this year", saying that "there will probably be some minor changes to get the thing going."

Of course, Conroy's main off-season job is recruiting. "Right now, it's easier to recruit players from Illinois and Ohio because of the tuition fees there. However, the major concentration for recruiting is on the tri-state area first, and once we utilize all our contacts, then we'll start going out of state", Conroy said. However, he plans to keep in touch with his out state contacts.

The team's greatest need right now, according to Conroy, is both offensive and defensive down linemen. They're also looking for people in skilled positions, such as split end. He emphasized the fact that you have to have three or four people deep in most positions."

A recent story by the Winona Daily News said that the various booster clubs of WSU athletics were trying to raise money for scholarships, with 35 going to the football team. Conroy said that the article was misquoted. "What they're trying to do is to organize into one organization rather than a number of separate ones. Hopefully, if they do that then they can raise more money. If they go downtown on a one-shot period some of the bankers say it's much easier to raise one thousand dollars rather than a couple hundred dollars. If the organization, whatever they call it, if they can raise 'x' number of dollars then the amount of money they will raise in that type of fund could be used for scholarships and it will be broken down among all the sports."

At the annual football banquet, defensive awards went to Ron Kasper (line) and Brian Ihde (back). Offensive awards went to Tom Staley (line) and Dave Voss (back). Staley also received the team MVP award.

Gymnasts Open Saturday

by Chris Neuhaarth
WINONAN Sports Reporter

The Winona State gymnastics team opens their 1977-78 season at home Saturday, Dec. 10 against LaCrosse. Coach Steve Juare's squad has been preparing since mid-September for its opener with the Indians, who edged the Warriors by slightly more than a point last season. Coach Juare expects a close, tough meet with their traditional rivals. "It's always a really close meet between the two universities and there is usually pretty good competition."

Nine girls are presently on the WSU gymnastics team. Returning from last season are: Ann Greenslit, Monica Phillips, Terry Larson, and Karen Ralseth. Newcomers include Mona Miller, Alice Beyer, Wendy Zorn, and Julie Berreth. Monica Phillips, a key performer from last year's squad, has been sidelined the past eight weeks and will not see action against LaCrosse. Zorn is battling mononucleosis and also has been unable to practice.

Coach Juare hopes his returning performers can compensate for the absence of Phillips. "We have some other girls coming back who should help with the depth. Ann Greenslit, who qualified for the regionals and placed in the state last year, is back. Terry Larson is back and this is her first year returning from serious injury; she'll be able to help us. Karen Ralseth is back on the beam and she'll be able to help us too."

Coach Juare is somewhat uncertain of his team's strong events. "Traditionally, the vault is a strong event because it requires the least amount of preparation. If you don't score well on the vault, you're probably not going to score well as a team. I wouldn't say that's the case this year for us. I think that we have more depth in the other so we'll be about the same in all of them. I look for improvement in the beam and in the bars over the past couple years, which would result in evening out. We should be in overall good shape."

The Warriors face a tougher schedule than last season and Coach Juare would like to qualify for nationals but would consider a .500 season a success.

Otis case granted

Remick Appeal Rejected by Faculty Reps

by Mike Killeen
WINONAN Sports Reporter

The hardship cases of WSU football players Mike Remick and Bill Otis were recently voted on by a meeting of the NIC Faculty Representatives November 17 in Minneapolis.

A hardship case, defined simply, occurs when a player has become inactive during the course of the season. The school may appeal to the ruling body (in this case, the NIC Faculty Representatives) for another year of eligibility for the athlete.

Both players were injured this season for the Warriors. Remick played in five quarters, while Otis appeared in one game. The NIC rule book, a compromise between the NIAI and the NCAA rules, follows the NIAI one-game hardship rule.

The procedure for presenting a hardship case to the representatives involves passing out a player's folder, according to WSU's faculty representative David Rislove. The folder contains a cover letter, signed by the coach and athletic director; a standard form requesting special consideration of eligibility to the NIC; a statement by the physician; and transcripts of the student involved.

Following the presentation of the folder, a motion is made to vote on the matter. In Otis' case, the hardship case was granted but Remick's case was turned down.

The decisions mean that Otis will be eligible to play for another two seasons while Remick, the standout defensive lineman, is through with his college career.

Head football coach Frank Conroy called Otis a "very capable, fine, ballplayer" who can play in a number of positions. Conroy said that two things entered into the decision against Remick — the fact he played in five quarters and that he would be entering his sixth year of school. The NIC only allows for five years of eligibility.

Warrior Bowlers Not Yet Rolling

It's been a rough year up to now for the Winona State bowling teams. Although the men won their first match of the season Saturday against St. Olaf, the women fell in a close decision to the Oles.

As of November 12, the date of the last issue of the Midwest Intercollegiate Bowling Conference standings, the men had a firm hold on last place, having won 47½ points and losing 136½, while the women were mired in sixth place in the eight-team league.

Even though the women lost by a mere one point, to St. Olaf 23½ to 22½, they were not let down by Pam Grose, who rolled the highest game in the MIBC all year with a 235.

Glenn Kookan fired a 214-608 in the men's 25-21 win over St. Olaf. Mike Mantzke added a 569.

Earlier in the year, the men were defeated 19-27 by St. Olaf and the women drew, 23-23.

Kookan has led the team by averaging 183. Karen Brown has been carrying a 154 average.

Bowling coach Jerry Bubnitz has been disappointed up to now with his team's performance. He feels his team has much more talent than it has shown.

Cagers Stagger to 1-4 Mark

by Joe Bissen

WINONAN Sports Editor

Winona State's basketball season is not even a month old, but it must seem like it's a year old to Warrior coach Ben Hix and his cagers. The Warrior squad has yet to look like the strong team it was expected to be, as it has an unimpressive 1-4 record through five games.

The two most recent defeats came at the hands of Wisconsin foes in the University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse Invitational Tournament. The Warriors opening game in the four-team event was against Carroll College of Waukesha, and WSU came out on the short end of a 67-59 score.

Winona encountered the same problems it did in its previous contests when it played Carroll, namely rebounding and not knowing what to do with a lead. The Warriors held a 33-23 halftime advantage by outscoring the Pioneers 9-2 in the closing seconds of the first half.

But that quickly vanished when the Pioneers came out of the locker room and soon made it a three-point lead. A zone press was largely responsible for Carroll's second half spurt.

Dan Huckle threw in two free throws with 0:32 left to ice the game for Carroll. Huckle wound up with 23 points for his efforts, while forward Steve Peterson was the game's leading scorer with 24.

Tom Diggs led the WSU effort by tallying 13 points and 14 rebounds. Bob Lyons had eight assists but went just 4-13 from the field and fouled out late in the game.

Hix was completely disgusted with the team's performance. What he said after the game must have been on his mind after each of the other four losses. "I was totally disappointed in the second half. It was terrible."

Hix explained his team's lackluster performance by saying, "There's nobody to fire the team up. We got beat by a bad ball team. There's no aggressiveness. We came down and threw the ball up. We weren't running anything."

As for the solution to the problem, Hix felt "the players gotta take it upon themselves. It's an individual thing."

Apparently, none of the Warriors were ready "to take it upon themselves" the next night against Northland College of Tomah. WSU dropped a 89-82 ballgame to the Lumberjacks.

The loss came in the consolation game, which meant that the Warriors placed fourth in the four-team field.

Northland led pretty much throughout the entire game, and held a 47-40 halftime advantage.

Winona had one of its best shooting nights, hitting 36 of 71 shots, but it turned the ball over 23 times compared to Northland's 12.

Diggs had 19 points and Wendell Anderson 16 for the Warriors. Anderson had 12 rebounds.

In the Warriors initial two games of the season, St. Mary's and the University of Dubuque dished out the punishment with wins over WSU.

Winona won its first game of the season by crunching UW-River Falls 83-73 in Memorial Hall. The Warriors vaulted out into a 45-25 halftime lead. An aggressive defense and an offense which was set up and run well enabled WSU to jump to an early 17-5 advantage.

Don Hageman and Lyons led the Warrior effort with 23 and 24 points, respectively.

WSU will undoubtedly get more performances like that this year. Hopefully, its next will come tomorrow night against St. Olaf. Featured at halftime in Memorial Hall will be a frisbee show, including the 1977 overall Midwest Frisbee Champion.

Wrestlers Unafraid of "Big Guys"

Winona State's wrestling team doesn't appear to be afraid of names like Iowa State University, the University of Minnesota, or North Dakota State University. It turns out that little out-of-the-way colleges can compete with the big guys, as WSU showed last weekend in Ames, Iowa, where they competed in the Iowa State Invitational.

Four Winona State wrestlers placed in the event, which features some of the top schools and top wrestlers in the nation.

Tom Danielson, a 158-pounder out of perennial power Caledonia, placed second in his weight class to top all Warrior wrestlers.

Jerry Nolan, a 167-pound junior, placed third despite what head coach Tom Eitter called a "bad draw." Nolan wound up facing Iowa State's Kelly Ward, an NCAA national champ, in the semifinals and wrestled well before losing 7-3.

Bruce Anderson had "a real good tournament" in placing fourth, according to Eitter. He finished with a 4-2 record, including losses to a third-place NCAA wrestler and a 1-1 referee's decision which went against Anderson.

Bill Goergen rounded out the WSU place-finishers with a sixth-place finishers with a sixth-place in the 142 division.

Other wrestlers who were singled out by Eitter as performing well included Dave Kimball (118), Ron Mueller (126), Pat Knetter, Dave Laumb, and Mike Coakley.

The Warriors also competed in the Bison Open in North Dakota State to begin their season, and Nolan was "very impressive" there, as he captured second place. Nolan lost to Ward in the finals.

There were three NCAA Division I finalists in action at the Bison Open.

Unlike all other sports at Winona State, the wrestling program has opted to compete in the NCAA and not the NAIA. This makes for tougher competition throughout the year, but it appears Winona is up to the challenge.

Next action for the grapplers takes place December 15 at River Falls for the UW-River Falls Invitational. Winona State hosts its own open tournament January 7. It will be a four-team affair.

Track Meeting to be Held

There will be a meeting Tuesday, December 12, at 3:00 p.m. for anyone interested in participating in men's track this spring. The meeting will be held in Room 110 of Memorial Hall.

Winona State has both indoor and outdoor track. Last spring, the Warriors finished second in the NIC as a team. The coach is Myron Smith.

Winter IM Begins Soon

Fall intramurals ended last month when the 50% Kids won the men's football championship by beating the Odd Squad by a score of 21 to 7.

Winter intramurals start soon and deadlines are drawing near. Registration meetings are as follows: Men's Basketball — registration completed; Women's Basketball — Dec. 9; Co-rec Volleyball — Dec. 14. All meetings will be held at noon. Sign-up for the Winter Bowling Leagues is in the Student Activity Office and must be completed before Dec. 13.

Officials will be needed for all intramurals and forms are available in Memorial Hall.

Bring in your phono cartridge for a free 500-mile checkup!

Saturday, December 10 9:30 AM - 5:00 PM

Did you know that the stylus on your phonograph cartridge travels about one mile of record groove for every hour of music you enjoy? That's why it's a good idea to have your cartridge checked after every 300-500 hours (miles) of use.

The Micro-Acoustics JB-2 Cartridge Analyzer.

A new kind of 500-mile checkup. While most cartridge manufacturers—and their clinics—view cartridges primarily in terms of record wear and tracking ability, Micro-Acoustics goes an important step further. Which is why their Phono Cartridge Clinic is the most comprehensive ever developed. So comprehensive, in fact, they've invented a unique cartridge analyzer—the JB-2—which works in conjunction with an oscilloscope and the CBS Labs test records.

Specifications most manufacturers never even reveal. The Micro-Acoustics Phono Cartridge Clinic goes beyond frequency response to areas like square-wave response. Intermodulation distortion. And capacitance effects. To name but a few. No other cartridge clinic tests these factors... yet any engineer will tell you they are the best measurements of a cartridge's sonic performance.

Micro-Acoustics' technicians will also do all the things you'd expect a cartridge clinic to do. They'll clean and inspect your stylus. Adjust tracking and anti-skating to optimum settings. Check turntable speed accuracy. Test channel balance, phasing and crosstalk.

Come early. Though the procedure takes about 15 minutes per turntable, testing will be done on a first-come, first-served basis. (And you'll have to stay with your turntable.) But when the testing's done, you'll have a 6-page comprehensive record of the test results.

An important note: Micro-Acoustics requests you bring in only high-quality cartridges mounted in comparable record players: low cost units cannot be tested because they damage delicate test records.

Free bonus. The first 25 people with a qualified turntable each day of the clinic will receive a FREE Micro-Acoustics test record—a $3.95 value!
